City to host public forum on trash rules

June 22, 2016— City staff will host a public forum to discuss the revised solid waste ordinances which took effect June 1. The forum will be from 7 to 9 p.m., June 30, in the Commission Chambers at Deltona City Hall, 2345 Providence Blvd.

The forum will provide an opportunity for City residents to get answers to any questions they may have on changes to the City's solid waste ordinances and issues related to processes with the City's solid waste provider, Waste Pro. The forum will offer staff the chance to meet with residents and find out what's working and not working and to hear any ideas residents may have for improvement.

On Feb. 22, the City Commission approved revisions to the City's solid waste ordinances in an effort to transform and beautify the City as well as to transition to a more efficient, and environmentally friendly, automated collection system. City staff embarked on a public education campaign, hoping to inform residents of the ordinance changes which became official June 1.
